HEAVY SNOW STORMS.

Railroad Trains Stopped by the Depth of the Beautiful. DENVER, Oct. 13 .- One of the most severe storms that has visited Denver in thirty years has been raging in the vicinity of Denver and, in fact, through the entire mountain regions. It began at 8 o'clock Tuesday night and for thirty or hours the wind blew a hurri-cane, while the rain fell in torrents on the plains and snow piled high in the mountains. Not a railroad running into the mountains were moving their trains last night, and telegraph communications with the interior of the state and with the east was absolutely cut off. Three to five feet of anow fill the mountain passes and it is packed hard, making it necessary for all the roads to send snow plows to relieve the blocked trains. Cable lines all stopped yesterday evening and electric cars made poor headway. A number of horses were killed by coming in contact with electric wires, and many buildings in course of erection were blown down. The financial loss will be very great.

APPORTIONMENTS STAND.

The Democrats of New York and Indiana Sustain Them.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 13 .- The republican state central committee today gave up the fight over the apportionment law and sent letters to the county chairmen throughout the state ordering them to call nominating conventions at once for legislative candidates. Very few candidates for the legislature have been nominated by the republicans as they fully expected the supreme court to order the election neld under the law of 1879, and this would have made a complete change in districts. Judge Bundy's order restraining the election of officers of Henry county from proceeding under the present law, will probably be vacated.

DEFENDS THE BISHOP.

A Muskegon Clergyman Explains the Difficulty.

The Rev. Fr. McNamara of Muskegon, in writing in the defense of Bishop Richter's attitude towards the Hibernians, says: In 1883 a church was dedicated by our right reverend bishop, in a country parish of which I had charge, in connection with several other missions. Bishop Richter officiated on the occasion. A large Ancient Order of Hibernian delegation from Saginaw attended the ceremony. They were welcomed both by Bishop Richter and my humble self. In the afternoon, on our return to Saginaw, the bishop was appr ached by an individual who averred that he was a representative of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and, on the cars, in public, he asked our bishop if he would approve the society known as the Ancient Order of Hibernians. His lordship, but a short time presiding over the destinies of a new diocese, po-litely informed him that as he had not seen the constitution and by-laws of said society, he was not prepared to answer positively. The insulting answer was: "It makes no difference whether you approve of us or not; we will flourish anyway!" A fine recommendation for episcopal sanction!

Naturally, when later on, recognition was demanded for said order, a "Prince of the Church" demanded apology for seemingly intended insult. It was never given! Since then the Hiberaians' actions have only tended to "add to jury to insuit." I have watched matters closely and intelligently, and her?" HER FELLOW PASSENGERS STARED.

But the Huge Bug Crawling on Ber Shoulder Was a Pet One, Securely Tied. A fair haired girl of eighteen, with ive face, furnished a heap of entertainment for the passengers who were riding down fown in a crowded car on the Sixth avenue elevated train Thursday. morning. The girl boarded the train at the Twenty-eighth street station at 9 o'clock. She were a gown of some plaid stuff in neat pattern. The waist was cut low at the neck and held up at the shoulders by small silk straps. It was filled in about the throat with puffs of snowy talls that fitted tight around the neck. ly stepped into the car when a gentle man caught sight of her pretty face, and rose instantly and with a low bow surrendered his seat on one of the cross Five minutes later everybody in the car was watching the girl with absorbed in terest. It wasn't on account of her winsome face either. A large Brazilian bug, with a brilliant shell, that crawled slowly along the surface of the tulle puffing at her throat, had caught their eyes. Passengers near by quickly de-tected that the bug was fastened to the waist of her gown by a tiny gold chain. The bug climbed several times over the top of the puffing upon the girl's white neck. The tickling caused by its feet apprised her of the fact, and each time she tenderly lifted the insect up and replaced it upon the tulle. She saw the passengers staring at her in astonishment, but paid no attention to their scrutiny.

When the train reached Eighth street an elderly woman got on and sat down in a seat directly opposite the handsome girl. She caught sight of the Brazilian bug a minute or two later. It startled her so that she started up from her seat. Then she stared around at the other passengers for a minute with a dazed look. Finally, unable longer to control her agitation, she got up, crossed the car and put her lips to the ear of the self

"Don't get nervous, madam," she said. "I know the bug is there. It can't get away;" and she caught it up and let the tiny gold chain and manacles dangle an instant to show that the insect was a

A well dressed man who had been gazing at the girl for a long time turned to a reporter who sat beside him and

"That's a common enough fad in India, where young women have a fancy for fastening pet Brazilian bugs to their dresses, but it is the first time I ever saw the odd fashion copied in this city, at least in public. It's a mere whim, and it might become a craze. You can't tell about such things, you know."

The pretty girl got off at the Battery place station, and tripping lightly down stairs to the street strolled through Battery park. Pedestrians stopped and turned about and stared after her, but no one spoke to her and she spoke to no one. Her bearing was ladylike, but she often smiled slightly at the surprise of those who passed her.—New York Sun.

The Sport of Fortune Inventors are proverbially the sport of fortune. A poor fellow of this class named Johson was once a boarder in a house on Washington place, New York. He had invented a lot of clever things which were of no use to anybody, and he was very hard up. The landlady was a kindly soul and she did not press him for a long time, but at last his debt was so large and his hope of paying it so small that he vanished from the house. Two months later, in the middle of winter, the man reappeared and begged shelter for the night. In his old room he committed suicide. The Flowerless City.

The pet name of Chicago is the Garden City, or at least it once was, and the legend on its cost of arms is, "Urbs in Horto," It therefore seems strange to read of a monthly or weekly flower show in cities like Boston, when an anomal flower show is all we can of the branches mentioned, all would | boast of. If we except the public parks, there are fewer flowers in Chicago than in any great city in the world.
